Kordes Roses

The German based W. Kordes' Sohne breeding program is one of the largest in the world. When they realized that much of Europe was going to move toward banning pesticides for garden use, they let their rose fields go without any spraying for 5 years. Then they looked at what survived and from those roses they have worked very hard to produce beautiful roses with glossy foliage making it harder for disease to establish. These roses have won awards at major international rose trails.

Many of the following roses are available by mail from
